

Invest in Yourself and Your Future

Funding Your Walden Education

Higher education may be among the most significant investments you'll ever make in yourself. At Walden University, we recognize the unique financial needs of working adults, and we want to help you identify and understand the various financial aid options available. Our knowledgeable financial aid advisors can help you explore these options so that you can choose the plan that works best for you.

Federal Financial Aid

Two-thirds of Walden students receive some form of financial aid, and many defray up to 100% of their tuition and fees through low-interest Federal Direct Loans.* In order to receive federal financial aid, all students must complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA). When completing the FAFSA, be sure to fill in Walden's Title IV code, which is 025042. Learn about the requirements for financial aid eligibility at www.WaldenU.edu/financialaid.

Types of federal aid include:

- Federal Direct Loans (subsidized and unsubsidized): Subsidized loans are available to undergraduate and graduate students with financial need. Unsubsidized loans are available to students who do not meet the need requirement or who want to borrow more than the amount available under the subsidized loan.
- Federal Pell Grants: These need-based grants are generally awarded to undergraduate students who have not yet earned a bachelor's degree.
- Federal Direct Graduate PLUS Loans: These fixed-rate loans are for graduate students who are enrolled at least half-time and have a good credit history.
- Federal Direct Parent PLUS Loans: Parents and legal guardians, regardless of income, may borrow up to the total education cost for one year, minus other financial aid the student is receiving.
- Federal TEACH Grants: These grants are for post-baccalaureate and graduate students who intend to teach full time in high-need subject areas at schools serving students from low-income families. You may be eligible for this non-need-based grant if you are enrolled in certain Walden programs.
- Federal Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants (FSEOG): These grants are awarded to undergraduates with exceptional financial need and are very limited, so apply early.

Other Funding Options

State Financial Aid

You may be able to receive financial aid through a local grant program funded by your state of residency. To learn more about state financial aid opportunities, visit www.ed.gov and search for “State Higher Education Agency.”

Scholarships

Walden offers merit-based scholarships for academic and professional accomplishments. A list of Walden University scholarships is available at www.WaldenU.edu/scholarships. You also may want to look at the following online resources to research scholarship opportunities:

- Sallie Mae College Answer/Free Money for College at www.collegeanswer.com, search for “Free Money for College”

Private Education Loans

In addition to federal financial aid, you can apply for a private education loan through a financial institution. Make sure you’ve fully utilized federal loan eligibility first, as federal loans have lower interest rates and may offer more favorable repayment plans.

Monthly Payment Plans

Through a partnership with Sallie Mae TuitionPay®, Walden gives you the option to spread the cost of your tuition over multiple months—interest-free. An enrollment fee applies.

Higher Education Professional Development Program

As a faculty or staff member at a college or university, you may be able to benefit from a 10% tuition reduction† and a waiver of the application fee.

Educational Alliances

Walden has partnered with a number of organizations to provide employees and members with opportunities to enjoy special tuition savings.

Veterans Benefits

Walden offers a 10% tuition reduction† for veterans and active-duty military personnel.

Employer Reimbursement

Some Walden students can receive additional financial support through tuition-reimbursement benefits available from their employers.

Benefits for Returning Alumni

Walden offers special benefits for our graduates who return to earn an additional degree at our university.
