

Accreditation: A Hallmark of Academic Excellence

How can you ensure an academic degree will be recognized and valued by employers and colleagues? Choose Walden University, an accredited university. Accreditation involves a comprehensive review process that reflects a university's commitment to meeting the highest standards of quality.

Regional Accreditation

Walden University is regionally accredited by The Higher Learning Commission, which oversees all of the major universities in its 19-state region. The Higher Learning Commission is a member of the North Central Association, one of the six officially recognized regional accrediting associations in the United States authorized to accredit colleges and universities. Meeting rigorous quality standards set by such external accrediting bodies demonstrates that we offer programs of high quality, use effective teaching methods, and support student achievement.

Program Accreditation

Certain degree programs are eligible for professional accreditation. The following programs are accredited at Walden:
