Walden University Financial Aid Cost of Attendance (COA) Allowances for Bachelor’s Degree Programs Independent Students: Course-Based Programs

(Academic Years beginning 2/3/25 and later)

The Financial Aid Cost of Attendance (COA) is an estimate of the total cost that an individual would incur to attend school. This includes charges posted to your student account (direct costs) as well as estimated costs not charged by Walden University but that you may incur while attending school (indirect costs). Walden University uses information from the Bureau of Labor and Statistics to develop averages for indirect costs like housing and food. While these averages may not exactly represent what you may spend on indirect costs, they do provide a basis on which to estimate your financial need while attending school.

- Financial Aid COA may be different depending on registered credits and weeks in each financial aid payment period (term). The COA used to determine your financial aid amount is displayed on your Walden myFinAid Portal.
- The living allowance is based on national economic data that reflects housing, food, transportation, personal and internet costs associated with time in school for working adults. The amount is based on weeks enrolled in the quarter/semester and will be reduced if the student is in courses that are shorter than the full-term length.
- Generally financial aid is offered based on an estimate of two-courses of enrollment per term over the three-term academic year. The COA will be adjusted before funds disburse each payment period to reflect actual credit-load and weeks enrolled during the payment period (term).
- If there is an overlapping loan with another school, Walden will remove the living allowance for the overlapping period.

2025-2026 Walden University Financial Aid Cost of Attendance (COA) Allowances for Education Specialist Programs Independent Students: Course-Based Programs

(Academic years beginning 2/3/25 and later)

The Financial Aid Cost of Attendance (COA) is an estimate of the total cost that an individual would incur to attend school. This includes charges posted to your student account (direct costs) as well as estimated costs not charged by Walden University but that you may incur while attending school (indirect costs). Walden University uses information from the Bureau of Labor and Statistics to develop averages for indirect costs like housing and food. While these averages may not exactly represent what you may spend on indirect costs, they do provide a basis on which to estimate your financial need while attending school.

- Financial Aid COA may be different depending on registered credits and weeks in each financial aid payment period (term). The COA used to determine your financial aid amount is displayed on your Walden myFinAid Portal.
- The living allowance is based on national economic data that reflects housing, food, transportation, personal and internet costs associated with time in school for working adults. The amount is based on weeks enrolled in the quarter/semester and will be reduced if the student is in courses that are shorter than the full-term length.
- Generally financial aid is offered based on an estimate of two-courses of enrollment per term over the three-term academic year. The COA will be adjusted before funds disburse each payment period to reflect actual credit-load and weeks enrolled during the payment period (term).
- If there is an overlapping loan with another school, Walden will remove the living allowance for the overlapping period.

2025-2026 Walden University Financial Aid Cost of Attendance (COA) Allowances for Tempo Programs Independent Students

(Academic years beginning 2/3/25 and later)

The Financial Aid Cost of Attendance (COA) is an estimate of the total cost that an individual would incur to attend school. This includes charges posted to your student account (direct costs) as well as estimated costs not charged by Walden University but that you may incur while attending school (indirect costs). Walden University uses information from the Bureau of Labor and Statistics to develop averages for indirect costs like housing and food. While these averages may not exactly represent what you may spend on indirect costs, they do provide a basis on which to estimate your financial need while attending school.

- Tempo programs use the non-term financial aid academic calendar and, as such, the financial Aid COA will be reduced for periods shorter than the 52-week academic year but not increased for periods that extend beyond the 52-week academic year. The COA used to determine your financial aid amount is displayed on your Walden myFinAid Portal.
- The living allowance is based on national economic data that reflects housing, food, transportation, personal and internet costs associated with time in school for working adults. The amount is based on weeks enrolled in the 52-week academic year and will be reduced if the student's academic year is shorter than 52-weeks.

2025–2026 Walden University Financial Aid Cost of Attendance (COA)

Allowances for Bachelor’s Degree Program Independent Students: Course-Based Programs

The Financial Aid Cost of Attendance (COA) is an estimate of the total cost that an individual would incur to attend school. This includes charges posted to their student account (direct costs) as well as estimated costs not charged by Walden University but that may be incurred while attending school (indirect costs). Walden University uses information from the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics to develop averages for indirect costs like housing and food. While these averages may not exactly represent what a student may spend on indirect costs, they do provide a basis on which to estimate financial need while attending school.

- Financial Aid COA may be different depending on registered credits and weeks in each financial aid payment period (term). The COA used to determine a student’s financial aid amount is displayed on their Walden myFinAid portal.
- The living allowance is based on national economic data that reflects housing, food, transportation, and personal and internet costs associated with time in school for working adults. The amount is based on weeks enrolled in the quarter/semester and will be reduced if the student is in courses that are shorter than the full-term length.
- Generally, financial aid is offered based on an estimate of two enrolled courses per term over the three-term academic year. The COA will be adjusted before funds disburse each payment period to reflect actual credit load and weeks enrolled during the payment period (term).
- If there is an overlapping loan with another school, Walden will remove the living allowance for the overlapping period.

2025–2026 Walden University Financial Aid Cost of Attendance (COA) Allowances for Education Specialist Programs Independent Students: Course-Based Programs

The Financial Aid Cost of Attendance (COA) is an estimate of the total cost that an individual would incur to attend school. This includes charges posted to their student account (direct costs) as well as estimated costs not charged by Walden University but that may be incurred while attending school (indirect costs). Walden University uses information from the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics to develop averages for indirect costs like housing and food. While these averages may not exactly represent what a student may spend on indirect costs, they do provide a basis on which to estimate financial need while attending school.

- Financial Aid COA may be different depending on registered credits and weeks in each financial aid payment period (term). The COA used to determine a student's financial aid amount is displayed in their Walden myFinAid portal.
- The living allowance is based on national economic data that reflects housing, food, transportation, and personal and internet costs associated with time in school for working adults. The amount is based on weeks enrolled in the quarter/semester and will be reduced if the student is in courses that are shorter than the full-term length.
- Generally, financial aid is offered based on an estimate of two enrolled courses per term over the three-term academic year. The COA will be adjusted before funds disburse each payment period to reflect actual credit load and weeks enrolled during the payment period (term).
- If there is an overlapping loan with another school, Walden will remove the living allowance for the overlapping period.

2025–2026 Walden University Financial Aid Cost of Attendance (COA) Allowances for Independent Students in Programs With the Tempo Learning[®] Format

The Financial Aid Cost of Attendance (COA) is an estimate of the total cost that an individual would incur to attend school. This includes charges posted to their student account (direct costs) as well as estimated costs not charged by Walden University but that may be incurred while attending school (indirect costs). Walden University uses information from the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics to develop averages for indirect costs like housing and food. While these averages may not exactly represent what a student may spend on indirect costs, they do provide a basis on which to estimate financial need while attending school.

- Programs offered in the Tempo Learning[®] format use the non-term financial aid academic calendar and, as such, the Financial Aid COA will be reduced for periods shorter than the 52-week academic year but not increased for periods that extend beyond the 52-week academic year. The COA used to determine a student's financial aid amount is displayed in their Walden myFinAid portal.
- The living allowance is based on national economic data that reflects housing, food, transportation, and personal and internet costs associated with time in school for working adults. The amount is based on weeks enrolled in the 52-week academic year and will be reduced if the student's academic year is shorter than 52 weeks.
- If there is an overlapping loan with another school, Walden will remove the indirect costs for the overlapping period.
